PRESENTATION

A legacy of the past, the Lieu-Dit "Beauregard" has its own history that is forever attached to it.

The Lieu-dit "Beauregard" is located in the commune of Restigné in the heart of the Bourgueil appellation. Vines have been planted here since Roman times, but its reputation is linked to that of Bourgueil Abbey, founded around 990 by Benedictine monks who, under the leadership of Abbot Baudry, knew how to extract the quintessence of their vines.

LOCATION

The Lieu-dit "Beauregard" is part of the commune of Restigné. It is located near an ancient road: "le grand chemin", which linked Touraine to the Ocean, via Anjou.

TERROIR

The plots of land of the Lieu-dit "Beauregard" are located in a small valley with a slight slope. The vines, facing south, benefit from maximum sunshine.

The Loire valley is about ten kilometres wide and was, a long time ago, a vast estuary covered by the sea. This results in a variety of soils.

In the "Beauregard" area, the subsoil is clayey and relatively deep. On the surface, this soil contains a large quantity of small flints, gravels and pebbles: the gravels (ancient alluvium of the Loire) on a sandy horizon. This terroir allows the vines to establish themselves well thanks to the characteristics of its subsoil and favours rapid warming of the vines thanks to its surface composition. The vines therefore show good precocity.

The climate is temperate. On the edges of the valleys, the soil heats up quickly under the oceanic influence which penetrates to the heart of the vineyard.

Total surface area of the plots: 3 ha
